

Director, The Joseph C. Cornwall Center for Metropolitan Studies
Rutgers University-Newark

Rutgers-Newark invites applications and nominations for the position of Director of the Joseph C. Cornwall Center for Metropolitan Studies. The Center, established in 2000 with a substantial endowment from The Fund for New Jersey, plays a crucial role in the academic life of this urban research university. The Center undertakes scholarly and applied research and public policy analysis on urban issues with a particular emphasis on Newark and the northern New Jersey metropolitan region. It also supports basic scholarly research, seminars and conferences for faculty in many fields on urban subjects. The Center works to focus the diverse resources of Rutgers-Newark on critical urban questions, especially as these affect residents, businesses, government and other other institutions of urban New Jersey, and it conducts an active program of community engagement. More information on the Center is available at its website, www.cornwall.rutgers.edu

The Center director must have a scholarly record appropriate to a senior appointment in a faculty position in one of the departments or schools on campus. Candidates should evidence a substantial record of research on cities, metropolitan areas and urban policy; extensive experience in managing applied urban research; and the ability to work successfully with scholars in a wide variety of disciplines and with governmental, community and foundation leaders. Ability to secure external funding for Center projects is essential. The Center's director will have the opportunity to play a significant role in Newark's continuing revitalization and to contribute substantially to Rutgers-Newark's mission as an urban research university. Salary and benefits are highly competitive.

Applications, including a cover letter, a curriculum vita, and the names, addresses and telephone numbers of at least five references should be sent to:

Dean Marc Holzer, Chair
Cornwall Center Director Search Committee
School of Public Affairs and Administration
Rutgers University-Campus at Newark
111 Washington Street, Newark, New Jersey 07102-3094

The committee will begin reviewing candidates on December 1st and will continue until the position is filled. Rutgers-Newark is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer.
